The index's return assumes reinvestment of all distributions and dividends; you cannot invest directly in an index.

INVESTMENT OBJECTIVE & STRATEGY

The Mid Cap Value portfolio seeks to achieve a return equal to or greater than the Russell MidCap® Value Index. Historically, mid-cap stocks have offered higher rates of return than large-cap stocks but lower rates of return than small-cap securities. Mid-cap stocks have also been more volatile than large-cap stocks but less volatile than small-cap stocks. When building this portfolio, the manager screens the companies in the Russell MidCap® Value Index through its proprietary halal investing software, first removing stocks with unacceptable primary business activities. The remaining stocks are evaluated according to several financial filters to remove companies whose debt or interest-income ratios run afoul of halal screens.

WHAT ARE MID CAP VALUE STOCKS?

Mid cap stocks are shares of companies that fall between large-cap and small cap companies in terms of market capitalization (the total market value of all their shares). Different managers use different dollar amounts in their definitions of mid cap, but in general mid caps are companies with a market cap between $2 billion and $10 billion.

Mid cap companies also tend to fall between large and small cap companies in terms for risk and volatility. They may be somewhat more volatile than their large-cap counterparts, but they also still have room to grow, which could mean bigger returns.

Mid cap value stocks are companies in this category that analysts believe to be under-valued, meaning their stock prices are lower than what they could be based on the fundamentals of the companies.

Investing involves risk, including the possible loss of principal. Please read the following important disclosures.

Mid-cap stocks could fall out of favor and returns would subsequently trail returns from the overall stock market. Investing in dividend yielding stocks could fall out of favor and returns would subsequently trail returns from the overall stock market.

Moreover, to the extent that a portfolio favors a growth style, the risk is that the values of growth securities may be more sensitive to changes in current or expected earnings than the values of other securities. To the extent a portfolio uses a value style, the risk is that the market will not recognize a security's intrinsic value for a long time, or that a stock judged to be undervalued may actually be appropriately priced.

Investments in securities involve risks and there is no guarantee that a strategy will achieve its objectives. As with all stock investments, you may lose money investing in a portfolio. Azzad's portfolios generally avoid companies in certain economic sectors and businesses due to Azzad's socially responsible investment restrictions. Therefore, their performance may suffer if these sectors and/or businesses outperform the overall stock market.

Each portfolio is nondiversified and may invest a larger percentage of its assets in fewer companies exposing it to more volatility and/or market risk than a diversified portfolio. Each portfolio is generally available only through one of Azzad's asset allocation strategies and is not designed by itself to be a comprehensive, diversified investment plan.

All of Azzad's models are actively managed. Active trading of securities may increase your account's short-term capital gains or losses, which may affect the taxes you pay. Short-term capital gains are taxed as ordinary income under federal income tax laws.

When reviewing your actual performance, holdings and asset allocation, note that different accounts, even though they are traded pursuant to the same strategy, can have varying results. The reasons for this include: i) the period of time in which the accounts are active; ii) the timing of contributions and withdrawals; iii) the account size; iv) the minimum investment requirements and/or withdrawal restrictions; and v) the actual fees charged to an account. There can be no assurance that an account opened by any person will achieve performance returns similar to those provided herein.

You should consider investing in the Ethical Wrap Program if you are looking for long-term returns and are willing to accept the associated risks.
